

About the Exchange Program

Undergraduate students from Human Ecology may spend up to a year studying at UNSW- the University of New South Wales. UNSW manages a large and active exchange program with over 190 different student exchange opportunities in 32 countries. UNSW embraces a policy of “internationalization” across the whole university and prides itself on being one of Australia’s most International Universities. UNSW has long embraced a policy of “internationalization” and provides opportunities and perspective for students as global citizens.

UNSW is situated in Sydney, one of Australia’s most dynamic and vibrant cities. Located on the southeast coast of Australia, Sydney is the gateway to Australia and home to over four million people. Kensington Campus, the main campus of UNSW, is located at Kensington, an inner southeastern suburb of Sydney. It is conveniently linked to all the major city transport hubs.

THE UNIVERSITY

About UNSW

UNSW has been one of Australia's leading international universities for the past 50 years. The University of New South Wales has awarded 222,613 degrees between 1949 and 2007. One in every four students comes from overseas, representing some 130 countries and contributing to the University's vibrant, dynamic and multicultural campus.

UNSW is widely regarded for its teaching excellence and research output. Consistently ranked as one of Australia's leading research institutions, the University has gained international recognition in a number of fields including quantum computing, photovoltaics, HIV/AIDS research, interactive cinema, science, the arts and law.

UNSW is committed to environmental sustainability, in its teaching and research programs and its campus practices. In 2007 it established the UNSW Climate Change Research Center, which is the largest center of its kind. The University is also implementing initiatives aimed at making the UNSW campus the greenest in Australia.

ACCOMMODATIONS

UNSW provides a range of on-campus accommodation to suit all requirements, from student apartments to dorm style residential colleges with associated dining halls. The University strongly recommends that international students live on campus to take advantage of opportunities to meet new people and experience university life to the fullest. Students should apply as soon as possible to secure a place.

Off Campus Accommodations

Many exchange students do not wish to apply for on campus accommodation but prefer to find shared housing close to campus in the beachside suburbs of Coogee, Randwick, Kensington, and Bondi etc. International Student Services has established the International Student Housing Assistance. This service provides information and assistance to help students to find suitable accommodation as soon as possible after arrival.
